Using Technology for Velocity:
The Evolution of Artificial Intelligence
within Procurement

HOSTED BY

Brad Mierenfeld

Capital One

Brad has over 20 years experience in a variety of technology roles at Capital One. He currently leads technology strategy and delivery for Capital One's procurement organization. His focus is on creating automation and developing new toolsets in order to improve the customer experience of procurement stakeholders.

He takes a customer-centric approach and is working to remove inefficiencies from current processes through creation of new capabilities for Capital One teams accountable for supplier management activities.

His team has active machine learning engagements in flight and can also share valuable lessons learned (both good and bad) from prior ML projects as well as general automation opportunities.
